

CLAIMED BY BOTH SIDES.

Result of Today's Elections All-absorbing Subject of Interest.

Victory in today's congressional elections is claimed by both democrats and republicans, in statements by the leaders of the campaigns of the respective parties last Saturday night.

Homer S. Cummings, acting chairman of the democratic committee, predicted that the democratic majority in the senate would be increased by the vote taken in 49 senatorial contests and that the democrats would make gains in the house of from 30 to 60 members.

Republicans will control the next house by a majority of 25 members, predicted the House of Representatives, of Ohio, chairman of the National republican congressional committee, declared. While no formal statement was issued by the republicans as to the senatorial contests, leaders of the party predicted that the next senate will be republican by a safe margin.

In his analysis of the political situation Chairman Fess said 230 congressional districts are "safely" republican, 172 are "safely" democratic and 23 are doubtful. Fourteen states, Chairman Fess claimed, will go republican, five to the democrats, and three are doubtful.

Twelve states, with 36 seats, are claimed as solid republican by Chairman Fess as follows: Delaware, Idaho, Maine, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming. Seven states, all in the south, with an aggregate of 64 members of congress, are conceded by Representative Fess to the democrats.

"Our analysis from every state point to a sweeping democratic victory," said the statement issued by Chairman Cummings. "The democratic majority in the next senate will be increased by the vote taken in the senatorial contests, and we will control the house by a substantial majority. Reliable estimates of net gains by the democrats range from 30 to 60. The time is running strongly in our favor, especially in the middle west and far western states, with a pronounced drift toward democratic candidates in many states."

The democrats, Chairman Cummings claimed, will control at least two-thirds of the states in which the senatorial contests have developed. He predicted that the democrats would gain in nearly every state in which there are contests for the house. Solid states are admittedly close, he said, but victories are assured in a sufficient number of districts to insure a democratic majority of not less than 39 in the next house.

SAW MILLING?

LABOR is very scarce. You know that. And it is hard to get almost any kind of help. It is especially difficult for us to get skilled labor and in consequence lots of work that we might be doing, has to go undone. But we are helpless until labor becomes more plentiful.

In the meantime, if you have any LOGS that you want sawed into LUMBER, we'll be glad to do the sawing for you. Cannot promise to get the sawing as soon as you bring the logs, but will saw them as soon after you bring them as we can—dependent on having sufficient labor to do the work. In other words, we'll get to your logs as soon as possible after you deliver them at the mill.

IF YOU WANT TO BE SHOWN Let ME Know

PLEASE BEAR IN MIND THAT IT HAS NOT BEEN my policy to undertake to scare any man into buying Life Insurance. It has always been my belief, and is now, that unless a man has an adequate conception of his MORAL OBLIGATION to provide ample insurance protection for his dependents, or creditors, it is not my time to try to reach him from any other angle, and I do not try to feel it to be an opportune time to place before the PROCRASTINATORS "witness because of my voice," an editorial that appeared in last week's Southern Underwriter, and trust that many of those who "Are Going to Insure or Increase the Amount They Already Have," but are waiting for a "More Convenient Season," may be brought to appreciate the fact that it is possible That They May Wait Too Long. The editorial follows:

"While the writer does not believe that honest men are anxious to make capital out of the misfortunes of others, we cannot refrain from urging the life insurance salesmen to press home to their prospects the lessons to be drawn from the influenza epidemic now prevailing in the United States and elsewhere. Unlike most diseases strong as well as the weak.

One of the greatest surprises that may come to an apparently healthy person is when he finds that his application for life insurance has been refused because of physical impairment. Disease is often insidious and the effects following even a mild touch of influenza may be such as will leave a weakened constitution which is sure to break down when subjected to a strain out of the ordinary. The time to buy life insurance is not after going through "the shadow of Death's valley," but now, before the handicap of physical weakness has shown its dangerous fangs.

No man is immune from sickness and disease, therefore those who put off the life insurance salesman and trust that a later application will go through, may wake up some day to find that "opportunity" has passed their door for the last time. There is no disappointment greater than that which comes to the procrastinator in life insurance matters. Many lives have been darkened and possibly shortened through failure to meet the medical examiner while constitutionally sound. In some cases a delay of a day or two on the part of the dividing line between physical fitness and health impairment.

During the present epidemic countless instances have been reported by life salesmen where men who might have secured insurance protection for their families have been cut down during the period of hesitation. When a solicitor develops a desire for life insurance protection in a person's mind, the prospect believes that he has only to say the word and the proffered protection will be granted. Far from it. Only sound lives are taken by the life insurance companies and consequently delays are dangerous. The lesson of the hour cannot be too strongly emphasized."

IF YOU READ my advertisement "WITHIN THE LAW" in last Friday's Enquirer, you have some conception of the superiority of a Life Insurance Company that is controlled by the Moral Law, and if you did not read it YOU SHOULD, even though you have no idea of insuring your life. I am prepared to SHOW YOU, anyway, that there is NO LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY in the same class as the MUTUAL BENEFIT. If You Want to Be Shown, Let Me Know.

SAM M. GRIST, Special Agent.
